

BS8800:2004

This is not an auditable standard, rather it is intended for those who want to integrate health and safety management into either an existing system or a new system involving another management system (such as ISO14001 or ISO9001)

This is similar to HSG65 but also includes a heading for Investigation and annexes specific to particular aspects of health and safety management. These annexes provide guidance.

- Comparison with other management system standards.
- Guidance on organising.
- Promoting an effective occupational health and safety management system
- Guidance on planning and implementing.
- Guidance on risk assessment and control.
- Measuring performance and audit.
- Hazardous event investigation.